

Crown Information:

Packages: The Top 3 Alliances will split the Conqueror and Defender packages, while the remaining Support Packages will be distributed according to the PoK Prep Phase Rank. The packages will be distributed as follows:

Alliance Currently Holding the Crown:

* 2 Defender Packages

Other Two Alliances:

* 1 Conqueror and 2 Defender Packages

PoK Prep Phase Rankings:

* All Support Packages

How to distribute packages?:

When distributing packages, you have to be EXTREMELY careful. If you do not follow the instructions described here, you will mess up and send them to yourself in error, so do this cautiously. You must click the estate of the person you wish to distribute the package to, go to titles, and then packages and select their designated package. If you attempt to hand out packages from the citadel, it will NOT work and the package will automatically be sent to yourself instead. There is no confirmation when packages are sent; it will send immediately when you click it, so be careful. You can review if a package was successfully sent to a player by looking under package history. Please note, as king, you will automatically receive a package, so you do not need to select one for yourself.

Now that we have PoK Prep rankings, you are required to wait 2 days before distributing any packages. This allows players the opportunity to contact you if they wish to reject their earned support package and provide you with a name to give the package to instead.**

Kingdom Buffs:

The first buffs you need to cast will be immediately after PoK concludes.

After KVK Battle: Rapid Training, Guided Recovery

It's important to be aware that there are 3 different training buffs, so be certain you are selecting the correct one.

Once you cast the buff, announce it to the kingdom in kingdom chat, so they can confirm you did your job and it's safe to start healing.

Week 1 Buffs:

Please review the buff schedule for PoK Prep Week.

PoK Prep Week happens during Week 2 of holding the crown, so for Week 1, the instructions are identical.

Please note, when casting buffs on Week 1, the cool down is exactly 7 days. You must cast Week 1 Buffs on time, so that they will be ready for PoK Week. PoK Week is the most important. As king, you must ensure buffs are available to be cast on time, as required.**

PoK Prep Week:

Day 1: Wartime Draft, Bountiful Kingdom, Flourishing Economy

Day 2: Building Boom, Age of Science

Day 4: Recruitment Drive

Ideally, these buffs should be cast at reset, however, if you cannot make the reset time, try to cast the buffs as close as possible.

Other Buffs/Skills Information:

I have listed Flourishing Economy under Day 1 of buff casting. This one is optional, giving a bonus to those who Top Up. The one thing you need to be aware of is that our kingdom has plenty of sage coins to cover our pok buffs first, as those are the priority.

Black Market Contacts can be exchanged up to 3x daily. It uses sage coins and gives the king gold. For this, be mindful of our sage coins as well. We do not want to deplete the kingdom of sage coins, so as a precaution, always remain mindful of this. Since the game has made sage coins more easily available, this should not be an issue and so you are encouraged to collect the gold daily for your benefit.

Titles:

Each king does things differently. Some kings are very passive and tell the kingdom to notify them if a person wants a title, but I think a king should be more proactive. This gives you the opportunity to spread goodwill amongst the kingdom and to interact with players who are often grateful when you select them for a title. It's a good thing to do and it allows you the chance to bond with other players in the kingdom. Some kings will choose one alliance at a time to give buffs to and some kings will mix the titles throughout the different alliances. It comes down to personal preference on how you want to manage the titles during your kingship.

For me, I look at the PoK Battle participants and I start from there. I write down the names and the players that participated are the first ones to get titles. After that, I choose players from each alliance during the title rotations, so that everyone is included each time I give out titles. This method is just my preference, as I wish to let each alliance benefit daily. I also write the names down, so I can easily know who I've given to and I don't have to worry about repeating players. This is just the extra care I take to fairly distribute titles - writing names down is not required. I also suggest changing the titles every 2 days, at the same time of day, if possible. Again, this is an area that is flexible, so choose wisely and fairly how you would like to manage it and stick to it.

Additional Information:

If you were selected as king, you are likely aware of this already, but please rule wisely. Do not abuse the titles and let communication always be your first line to resolving problems.

Do not change the kingdom name and if editing the kingdom message, please make sure the NAP policy is always listed.

I believe that is everything you need to know. If you have any questions at all, do not hesitate to ask. All the previous kings can help support you, so you are not alone.

Congratulations, new King!

Be great, as I know you will be. Have fun and may your reign be a peaceful one. <3

-Kahlita